Family tradition: Embalming Pope

ROME—After the death of Pope John Paul II, one family in Rome was waiting for a call from the Vatican to continue a family tradition—embalming the body of the Pontiff.

The Signoracci clan, the Corriere della Sera newspaper reported Sunday, had preserved the mortal remains of the last three popes: John XXIII in 1963, Paul VI in 1978, and John Paul I, the late Pope's immediate predecessor, also in 1978.

It's a family tradition that had been carried down from father to son.

"I'm ready. I'll do my job the best I can, like my father and his brothers did before me," said Cesare Signoracci, the latest in the line.

Embalming, according to funeral houses, is primarily done to disinfect and preserve remains.

The practice has been recorded in history as far back as the Egyptians but the procedure has changed many times over the centuries.

Modern embalming usually consists of removing all blood and gases from the body and inserting a disinfecting fluid.

The Signoracci family's technique obviously works.

Corriere della Sera said that when John XXIII's body was entombed in 2001 in order to be transferred to the basilica, it was found to be in excellent condition.

That was better than the case in 1958, when the stench from the body of Pope Pius XII reportedly caused several cardinals to faint.

News outlets received the information minutes after the Pontiff died at 9:37 p.m. Saturday (3:37 a.m. Sunday Manila time).

A mobile phone message sent to the news agencies said to check for an "urgent declaration" from the Vatican sent to the agencies' e-mail addresses.

The e-mail from Vatican spokesman Joaquín Navarro-Valls, was short: "The Holy Father died this evening at 21:37 in his private apartment."

"All the procedures foreseen by the Apostolic Constitution 'Universi Dominici gregis' promulgated by John Paul II on Feb. 22, 1996 have been set in motion," the e-mail said.

The electronic alert underlined the Vatican's embrace of media technologies under John Paul II, who was known as a Great Communicator adept in spreading his message worldwide.

"Universi Domini-el Gregis" (The Shepherd of the Lord's Whole Flock) brought the rules into step with modern times by banning mobile telephones, which did not exist in 1976 when John Paul was elected, and ruling out all forms of electronic bugging. The aim is to keep absolute secrecy.

In the Philippines, said to be the texting capital of the world, text messages were sent on the timing of the Pope's death.

John Paul II, dubbed the "Pope of the Divine Mercy," supported the devotion and cause of Polish Saint Maria Faustina Kowalska who initiated the apostolic movement of the Divine Mercy.

According to text messages, it was appropriate that he died a few hours before Sunday, which was the Feast of the Divine Mercy.

The text message said: "What an honor for this son of Poland! Jesus appeared to Saint Faustina, as the Divine Mercy, and told her that a spark would come from Poland that would ignite the world and prepare it for the second coming. This is the most perfect time to show how much heaven honors him." Reports from Christian V Eguerra, AFP Reuters

Europe's greenest regions struggle

Brussels—European Commission officials in Brussels said Sunday that the European Union's greenest regions are struggling to meet the EU's target of reducing greenhouse gas emissions by 20% by 2020.

Islanders flee amid rumors of new quake

GUNUNG SITOLI, Indonesia—A powerful tremor violently shook the wooden waiting room at the main harbor on Nias island; people dashed out, clutching their relatives, panic on their faces.

But the building did not fall down and the alarm subsided. People resumed the wait for a ferry that will help them flee the disaster-struck island.

Sunday's tremor, one of hundreds of aftershocks from the 8.7 magnitude quake that killed an estimated 1,300 people in northwestern Indonesia about a week ago, was strong but it was not the big one that islanders fear is coming.

The next one, according to rumors sweeping Nias and neighboring Simeulue, could match last week's quake or even the Dec. 26 one that unleashed a tsunami that killed 270,000 people across the Indian Ocean, 80 percent of them in Indonesia.

The next quake could produce a new tsunami or even sink an island, say the rumors, sourced to anonymous scientists or foreign aid workers delivering relief.

The fear has led thousands of islanders to adopt the tactic that saved many of them in December. When they saw the sea recede then they knew, from stories passed down through the generations, that a tsunami was coming and they took to the hills.

Some have not come down since then, and many more have joined them, relief agencies say.

The United Nations says about 20,000 people on Nias and at least 10,000 on Simeulue are in the mountains. Some are there because they lost their homes in the quakes, some are afraid of new destruction. AFF

9 dead in Aussie aid chopper crash

SYDNEY—Nine Australian military personnel died when their helicopter crashed during an aid mission to the earthquake-hit Indonesian island of Nias.

Prime Minister John Howard said Australia's worst post-Vietnam War operational loss of military personnel was tragic and would be investigated, adding it appears to have been a terrible accident.

"This is really quite heart-breaking. These young Australians were on a mission of mercy and compassion. They were helping the poor people of the island of Nias in the wake of the latest earthquake there," he told Australian Broadcasting Corp. radio.

The crash of one of Australia's aging Sea King helicopters occurred late on Saturday as it came in to land with four crew and a seven-person emergency medical team on board near the Nias capital of Gunungsitoli.

Six of the dead were from the Royal Australian Navy and three were from the Royal Australian Air Force. Two other unidentified personnel were recovered injured from the crash.

Australian Defense Force chief Lt. Gen. Peter Cosgrove said seven men and two women had died in the crash of the helicopter, which had been flying aid sorties from the amphibious transport ship HMAS Kanimbla.

A second Sea King from the Kanimbla reported seeing the first helicopter in flames. "My early indications are that the weather shouldn't have been a factor," Cosgrove said. Reuters

Fest of the Annunciation

1st Reading: Is 7:10-14, 8:10

2nd Reading: Heb 10:4-10

Gospel: Luke 1:26-38

In the sixth month, the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town of Galilee called Nazareth. He was sent to a young virgin who was betrothed to a man named Joseph, of the family of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

The angel came to her and said, "Rejoice, full of grace, the Lord is with you." Mary was troubled at these words, wondering what this greeting could mean.

But the angel said, "Do not fear, Mary, for God has looked kindly on you. You shall conceive and bear a son and you shall call him Jesus. He will be great and shall rightly be called Son of the Most High. The Lord God will give him the kingdom of David, his ancestor; he will rule over the people of Jacob forever and his reign shall have no end."

Then Mary said to the angel, "How can this be if I am a virgin?" And the angel said to her, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore, the holy child to be born shall be called Son of God. Even your relative Elizabeth is expecting a son in her old age, although she was unable to have a child, and she is now in her sixth month. With God nothing is impossible."

Then Mary said, "I am the handmaid of the Lord, let it be done to me as you have said." And the angel left her.

Commentary

This feast fell in Holy Week and so is moved to Easter Week. This is the familiar prophecy of a young woman who will bear a child whose name will be Emmanuel, God is with us. And the story of Gabriel sent to the young woman Mary inviting her to obey the Word and will of God for the long promised salvation of her nation. She will give birth to a child, but the child is not here—the child is God's, born of the power of the Spirit, born for the people and to bring hope and salvation into the world. Mary is the model for all believers and we too are invited to bring the Word of God into the world through our flesh, our words and lives. We too are called to be the handmaids of the Lord (as Miriam, David, Isaiah and others were named) and we too must pray: "Let it be done to me as you have said." Let the Word of God take flesh in us, the Body of Christ and may we bring that Word into the world that waits and needs it so desperately today.
